SECOND EXPLOSION

The supreme court's unanimous ruling causing $200,000,000 to be returned to processors who had tied up process tax collection by injunctions obtained in federal courts is in the nature of a second explosion. The main explosion destroying the agricultural adjustment act did the real damage. The second explosion was a result of the first.

Its force, moreover, was diminished by the fact the country expected to hear on Monday the supreme court's decision in the cases affecting the Bankhead cotton control law and the Tennessee valley authority. Either one would have compared favorably with the AAA decision in importance.

The ruling on impounded processing taxes entails the issue of the government's right to revenue from taxes collected unconstitutionally. Processors arguing that since the constitutionality of the new deal's legislation in behalf of agriculture was in doubt, persuaded lower courts in many cases to enjoin collection of taxes by the federal treasury. Their payments were held in escrow by the courts.

These payments will be restored to the processors. There is, unfortunately, no way to restore them to their original source, the persons from whom they were collected indirectly by the processors. Whether or not other processors, who paid taxes to the treasury, will be able to obtain refunds remains to be seen. The money has been distributed in the form of farm benefits; the government has no recourse to repossess it.

As the meaning of Monday's ruling sinks in, the palpable unfairness of imposing laws which entail the collection of money that cannot be returned to its source if the laws become invalid will be widely remarked. The courage and independence of certain federal judges are responsible for the ability of a few processors to regain funds which the government never had a legal right to demand.

IT ALMOST HAPPENED

Apparently, posterity is going to be given another tense moment in history to read about in shivering wonder. Already there is a fairly substantial legend of how war between Great Britain and Italy was averted Oct. 17, 1935, by only a few hours of negotiation.

As frequently is the case, the world knew almost nothing of its imminent danger at the time. The incident is one of the "now it can be told" type. Premier Mussolini of Italy, through France, warned the British that unless it changed its naval concentration plans in the Mediterranean he would order an attack on warships in Alexandria bay, on the coast of Egypt. A few hours later, the British ambassador placated Premier Mussolini with an announcement that his government would move some of its ships if Italy would move certain troops from Libya, where they were threatening British security in Africa.

Behind surface actions in Europe is the knowledge that Premier Mussolini believes in the ultimate replacement of Great Britain as chief empire builder by Italy. This is, for obvious reasons, a fundamental fact in consideration of everything which has happened recently and everything which threatens to happen in the near future. The world wonders what would have been the result of an attack on the British fleet in the Mediterranean. It is reasonably sure that an attack almost happened. At the moment of receiving the information it is no less sure that Italy did not permit its ambition to crystallize in action prematurely. Great Britain, whatever Premier Mussolini may think of its decadence, still is a formidable enemy—too formidable yet for the dictator who plans to build upon its ultimate ruins.

O. O. MCINTYRE

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

NEW YORK, Jan. 14—Lucius Beebe has become the journalistic dandy of his generation. A second Richard Harding Davis and latter day Ed Hill rolled into one. He sponsored the midnight blue in evening gowns. Like Davis, he is of silk-stockinged lineage, his parents being wealthy Bostonians.

In his 30's, slim, tall and blond, he seems born to the top hat, white knotted ebony and a Niagara cascade of muffer. At his apartment in the Madison he mixes Sutton Place and Broadway as expertly as he blends a strange cocktail that soon has everybody playing games.

Aside from being the only newspapering first nighter constantly to expand in white-tied elegance, he is a gourmet of high rank and one of the handful of his craft who can write authoritatively on vintage wines. He is a product of Harvard and has knocked about Europe extensively.

A bachelor, he is as much in demand as his urbane and civilized fellow Coffee Clubman, Frank Crowninshield, which means several dinner bids a night. Aside from his weekly column and theatrical article, he has recently authored a book and appears in key cities for lectures dealing with metropolitan manners.

The banquet had reached the 3 a. m. stage. At a table a lachrymose jag was weeping over the little woman at home. What a treasure she was! While he was out carousing, she was home, bless her, minding the children. Tomorrow was her birthday and he wasn't going home without a fine present. But he wanted suggestion. What gift was appropriate?

Everybody began to wonder. "Why not an alcohol lamp?" suggested Harry Silvey, who up to that time had said practically nothing.

The Rialto is becoming increasingly annoyed over the attitude of London audiences toward American performers. The recent discourtesies at the first night of Ramon Novarro stressed the insolence. The attitude is not of recent birth. I saw a worthy American vaudeville player bewildered to tears 11 years ago at the Palladium as result of receiving "the bird." The shabbiest outburst of cruelty I ever beheld. America has been extremely generous to English players on stage and screen. Charles Laughton, Leslie Howard, Chaplin and Colin Clive, for instance. Of course these players and their fellows have nothing to do with such snideness. But it is as little as they could do to protest.

The crowd that smoothed a path from the Grillon, to Ciro's and the Ritz for indeterminate exiled years will find their escapades audaciously mirrored in a book Erskine Gwynne, ex-Paris playboy, has prepared for Spring publication. It is called "Paris Pandemonium" and the loosely moraled married women and their gigolos will be faithfully etched. The volume covers that mad spending era of blurry nights and onion soup dawns that prospered as never before from 1925 until the smash-up.

The world's oldest dog trainer in years and service is Charles DeCamo who exhibits his famous pooch, Cora, at Billy Rose's circus carnival. DeCamo is 75 and has been trouping 60 years, 40 of which he devoted to training his charges. His way over totem is almost hypnotic. A master with his pet can be in DeCamo's presence a half hour and invariably the strange dog will leave his master to go off with the trainer. He rules by whispers a jargon of baby talk and an expert tickle behind the ear.

De Camo has gone further with the mental training of a dog than most in the profession. One of the tricks which cannot be performed, for obvious reason, on the stage is uncanny. He places the dog in one room, then goes into another and spreads playing cards on the floor. He then returns and the dog will bound into the other room and fetch any card asked for. The supposition is, naturally, the cards are fixed. But this conjecture is blasted by permitting anyone chosen to place the cards on the floor in any position desired. Also, one may bring his own deck.

Add jittery when excited talk: A traveler at Grand Central could not find the red cap who had his suit case, and rushing to the master, exploded: "Nice fix of a station when a suit case can't find a train. How do you think to catch me is all I hope."

Hamilton would show up at Mrs. Van Sittert's swell dinner wearing a badly fitting stiff shirt. And tails. Just as Mrs. Van Sittert engaged him in polite small talk, a mouse would enter the gap in his shirt and carry on some Olympic games thereunder. Hamilton's face became an alternating series of smiles at his hostess and expressions of terror at what was happening under his clothes.

Getting His Appetite Back

HEALTH

By Dr. Royal S. Copeland
New York City

ONE OF MY editor friends has asked for an article on asthma. He refers to it as an "extraordinary ailment" and certainly agree with him that it is.

Hay fever and asthma are two diseases that command the full attention of their victims. During the attack the patient can do little else than struggle for relief. When two or three persons who have one of the other of these ailments meet they invariably "swap" stories about their experiences and treatment.

Medical men have just begun to understand asthma. This evidence of progress has resulted from our advanced knowledge of "allergy." Physicians in increasing numbers are interested themselves in "allergic" problems. In consequence they are now preventing or materially relieving many attacks which used to cause such terrible suffering.

What is allergy? This term is applied to a condition of abnormal sensitiveness to certain substances, which are usually protein in their nature. Eggs and milk are rich in protein and that is why they are frequently found to be the offending substance. Of course, the average person is not allergic to such substances. This sensitivity is observed in asthmatics, sufferers from hay fever, and in those who have giant hives.

Skin Tests Effective
Asthma in the adult is often traced back to some sensitivity from which he suffered during childhood. But not every case has a previously known allergic complaint. As a rule asthma occurs in the second or third decade of life, and may appear even later.

The seizure usually occurs during the night. The victim has great difficulty in breathing; he coughs, wheezes and appears to be choking. The attack may last for a few minutes only or it may persist for several hours or even days. As it subsides the cough becomes more productive and the symptoms are less distressing. Relief soon follows, but the patient is completely exhausted for several days.

It is difficult to determine when the next attack will come. There may be freedom from asthma for days, months or even years. Sometimes the attacks come on at frequent intervals.

In order to determine the cause of the sensitivity, the allergic substance, it is customary now to apply certain skin tests. A small amount of the suspected offending substance is injected into the skin, causing a wheal or swelling. If this itches and becomes inflamed, it is called a "positive reaction." If there is not such reaction it is "negative."

Answers to Health Queries
T. B. L. Q.—What can be done for excessive perspiration which has a strong odor? This is most embarrassing.

A.—The personal hygiene is apt to be a factor in many instances. However, this condition is often due to an underlying nervous disorder. Improve your general health. For full particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

AGAIN WE SAY Opportunities to Lend Money

● The size of a loan counts very little with us—whether small or large. Safety, however, counts above everything else.

Once we are satisfied as to the borrower's ability and willingness to repay a loan, accommodation is usually granted. Remember that lending money is our chief way of earning money.

Do not get the impression that we object to lending money—when we feel sure it will come back. If you have a sound proposition we shall welcome the opportunity to consider the matter.

Striking New Fabrics Are Sensation Of 1936 Style

Popularity of Colored Prints Remains;
New Vestees for Suits Win Favor

BY JEAN ALLEN
International Illustrated News
Writer

NEW YORK — New and novel fabrics promise to be the sensation of the spring season in 1936.

Although many new departures along this line were shown in 1935, Paris designers have achieved some striking effects through a process which intensifies the white background of prints, giving heightened tone to the color designs.

Unusual effects are attained by use of shiny white and dull black patent leather patches. There is a new combination of silk and linen mixed which is non-crushable and ideal for the sports enthusiast. Checked wool in bright mixed colors intermingled with a basket weave has stirred considerable comment, also.

One of the more attractive new ensembles is of Grege lacy tweed, light and nubby, which is admirable when made up into a swaggerish sports costume. Designers are also showing creations in ribbed wool which looks as if it were stitched. There are mixtures of wool and acetate and even oilcloth and wool.

Sports Clothes Striking

Something simple yet attractive for sports wear is the suit worn by Marlene Dietrich, Hollywood star. The jacket is of blue linen and is cut to fit snugly at the hips and padded slightly at the shoulders to give a semi-military swagger to the top. White pearl buttons trim the double-breasted jacket. The short white skirt has an inverted pleat in the center of the front. Miss Dietrich's shoes are white with a wide crushed strap of blue kid across the instep.

Dolores Del Rio has the reputation in Hollywood of wearing the most striking clothes of anyone in the film colony. Her dark beauty is admirably set off in creations in which white is the predominant color.

Miss Del Rio's new semi-formal gown for resort wear is of most unusual cut. It flares to the ground with a V-shaped opening in front and is studded by huge buttons covered with a flower-like design. The gown is of elastic crepe and the smocked jacket has a brilliant orange background to its flowered design. The ruff-like collar and flowing sleeves contribute to the striking ensemble.

Out of Garment Important
When a suit is well cut it has a certain style and distinction which is immediately recognizable no matter how simple the garment. This is true of the suit worn by June Travis, one of the new stars who was snapped as she attended the races at Santa Anita.

Her tailored suit is of smooth surface salt and pepper wool with wide lapels which accent the tapering figure. The blouse is polka dotted in navy blue and her felt swagger hat is banded with navy ribbon.

Incidentally, one of the clever new accessories for women is the false front to wear with a suit. This simplifies the cleaning problem and provides a substitute for the shirtwaist. These vestees have backs attached only at the shoulders.

business man who paid without fighting might lose out.

All experts agreed that many processors would find it difficult, if not impossible, to demonstrate legally that they had borne the burden themselves.

For "Little Fellows"

"It seems to me," Borah said, "that in the light of the court's decision, we might have some legislation making it more practicable for the small fellows who haven't been able to contest the matter to get back their outlay, assuming they haven't passed it on."

New Deal leaders continued to work on a program to replace AAA, one high administration official expressed the belief that if congress approved a 7-point program adopted by 100 farm leaders here last Saturday, the government would be able to achieve the aims of the collapsed AAA. This program centers on subsidized soil conservation.

The old farm agency in the meantime, drew plans to demobilize its staff. Discharge of 3,000 of its 6,500 employees by Feb. 1 was predicted.

Senator Smith (D. S. C.) chairman of the senate agriculture committee, proposed that he described as a "permanent" plan to aid farmers. He should establish federal agricultural banks in each of the states.

Lend Against Crops

They would lend money against crops and other farm security and could acquire marketing and warehouse facilities to aid in disposing of commodities.

Cotton also was a major topic among legislators. Yesterday the supreme court dismissed a suit of Lee Moor, Texas cotton planter, challenging the Bankhead act which aims to control production by a prohibitive tax on cotton ginned in excess of quotas. The court held the suit was not a good one.

Although most legislators continued to believe the act would be overturned as soon as a proper suit reaches the decision stage in the right court, Senator Bankhead (D. Ala.) an author of the act, said a "perilous crop situation" could be averted because the law still is on the books.

GRAHAM SHOWS ITS NEW MODELS

Distinctive Styling Dominates Three New Lines

Three entirely new cars, the Graham Supercharger, the Cavalier and the Crusader, are announced by the Graham-Paige Motors corporation for 1936. All three are striking in appearance and distinctively styled throughout. The Graham Supercharger in the touring sedan models will sell at $865 at the factory, according to the announcement. This is the first time in automotive history that a car equipped with supercharger has been priced in the lower ranges. The Cavalier is listed at $765 factory, and the Crusader, Graham's model in the lowest price field, will list at $635 factory, and trunk models feature the entire line.

Advanced and original styling is the dominant note in all three of the new cars, with strong emphasis placed by the company on economy of performance, power, safety and riding comfort. Brilliant new body colors feature all models.

Long, low rakish lines in the Graham Cavalier and Graham Supercharger models are accomplished by an entirely new body design of all steel construction including a new rumble proof steel roof. In these two cars the designers have achieved an unusual and striking effect by bringing a sweeping band of body color vertically through the center of the radiator grill, conveying power and fleetness at a glance. The chromium grill radiator panels on each side of the center band of the body color enhance the impression of power seen in the long hood lines.

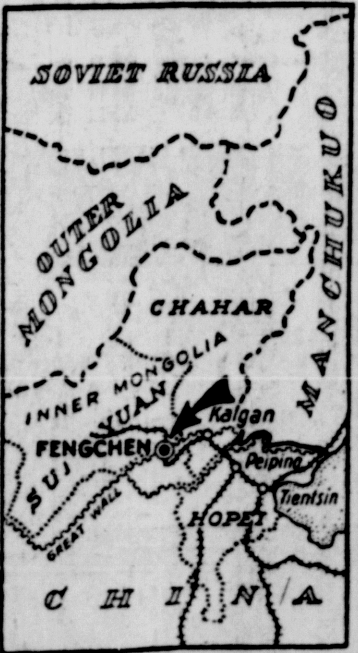

Behind the radiator grills are lateral bands of color that contrast pleasantly with the body color and add sparkle and life to the frontal appearance of the cars. This background of contrasting color is carried out also beneath the chromium louvers.

In the new lowest priced Graham Crusader, an entirely new body design provides a new and striking low-slung beauty. A distinctly individual style tone is imparted by continuing the six chromium louvers strips directly across the radiator grill which emphasizes the streamline appearance of the car and provides the shield motif from which the car gets its name.

The new Graham automobiles are now on display at the rooms of the Dunlap Motor Co., West State st.

Detroit Girl Seized By Coma After Revival

An emotional reaction experienced at a revival meeting of a small evangelistic sect was believed the reason for Shirley Tapp, 17-year-old Detroit schoolgirl, falling into a coma. Prayers of the congregation, including, right to left, standing, Leader Doss Kilgore, Laverne Tapp, her father, and Mrs. Myrtle Tapp, the mother, failed to stir the girl from her semi-conscious state.

BRUNO REPRIEVE MOVE IS AWAITED

Silence Presages Inactivity Until Perhaps the Last Minute

In the case but not officially associated with the investigation, never has been satisfied with the identification of the body, found in a shallow grave near the Hopewell home of the Lindberghs.

Not at His Office

Governor Hoffman did not appear at his office yesterday. It was reported he was conferring on the Hauptmann case, but this lack of confirmation. One report said he talked with a Chicago lawyer, Bernard Finnigan, who arrived here late Sunday with what he considered important evidence.

Finnigan told of a prisoner in a Chicago jail who said he knew three men possessing $22,000 of the Lindbergh ransom money. It was possession of such money that led to Hauptmann's arrest. State police said Finnigan last March had failed to give them details on request.

Hauptmann's lawyers took no concerted action yesterday. Judge Frederick Pope said last night that there had been no conference of counsel since the unfavorable decision of the court of pardons Saturday.

A meeting was held in New York last night by a "citizens committee of 500" which announced it would "flood New Jersey" with a brief in Hauptmann's defense.

John L. Sundeen, retired lawyer, said 2,000 copies of the brief were being sent to professional people in Jersey to a demand "for respect for law and that the rights of every man be preserved."

Those in charge of the meeting reported 1,000 persons paid 25 cents admission, with many contributing additional funds.

Suitor Proposes To His Girl In Front Of Police Station

(By Associated Press)

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Jan. 14—The telephone switchboard of the Cambridge police station buzzed imperatively.

Patrolman Fred Marchini pushed a plug into place, snapped the key and announced "Cambridge police."

"Tell me," said an irritated man's voice, "is it against the law to propose marriage to a girl in this city?"

"That was a new one on Marchini. 'Not that I know of,' he answered.

"Then, how is it that every time I park my car and work up enough courage to propose to my girl, some one flashes a light at the window and yells 'move on?' the voice asked.

Marchini suggested the family living room with the girl on a sofa and the young man on his knee was the traditional place for a proposal.

"It meant a boarding house living room in his case, the voice said, and that was out of the question."

The patrolman had an inspiration. "The safest place for you to park is right outside of the police headquarters," he said "no one will bother you. Any officer will think you came to the station on business."

"Thanks," said the voice and rang off.

Later the switchboard buzzed. Marchini plugged in.

The same man's voice sputtered at the other end of the wire.

"It's fine," he said. "No one's bothering us. She said 'yes' and we're going to be married in June. We'd like to have you come to the wedding."

Louis Victory Over Retzlaff Seems Sure; Expect 20,000 People

First 1936 Appearance of "Brown Bomber," Who Has Not Fought in Chicago Since Last August, When He Downed Kingfish

(By Associated Press)
CHICAGO, Jan. 14. — The outcome, a quick, crushing triumph for Joe Louis over Charley Retzlaff, seems as certain as tomorrow, but the indications are that $75,000 worth of spectators will be enough interested in seeing it done to go to Chicago stadium Friday night.

Chicago fight fans have not had an opportunity to watch the Brown Bomber blast an opponent out of action since last August when King Levinsky acted as the party of the second part. Many of the 39,195 who went to the White Sox baseball park that night missed seeing the King abdicate in the first round because threatening weather caused the management to stage the event about an hour ahead of schedule.

Near-capacity crowd
The attraction, the first major fight event of the Chicago season, as well as the spectacular Detroit

Negro's initial appearance of 1936, is expected to attract a near-capacity attendance of 20,000. Reports that Louis has not looked so sharp in training may help to pack the stadium.

Louis failed to show any signs of being off form in yesterday's drill. He jolted Otis Thomas for two solid rounds, then finally caught up with Jones, who devoted his efforts to retreating, in time to score a knockdown. Tiger Henderson absorbed his quota of two-flashed beating.

Trainer Jack Blackburn planned to give Louis final examination today in a stiff seven-round session against sparring partners.

Retzlaff, weighing 198 pounds and apparently as ready as he ever will be, worked only four rounds yesterday. He showed ample punching power, tipping over Mitz Minkiel, a heavyweight from Milwaukee, with a short right to the jaw.

Howard Cann, New York University basketball coach, has had some great teams in past years but it is generally conceded that his present aggregation, which hasn't tasted defeat in 17 starts, is the greatest bunch of shotmakers in the country. They've won their games by sheer brilliancy of shot executions when scores were most needed.

Farm Leaders Attend Parley

An appeal to farm leaders throughout the nation, sounded by Henry Wallace, secretary of agriculture, urging them to gather in Washington to plan a substitute program for the stricken AAA, brought together agricultural heads from all parts of United States, including, left to right, Edward O'Neil, president of the American Farm Bureau; Earl Smith of Illinois, and Charles Hearst of Iowa.

THE GUMPS - WHATTA MAN

BRINGING UP FATHER

POLLY AND HER PALS

Theater Attractions

Edward Everett Horton, in a role of a small town booster, will be seen in "Your Uncle Dudley" at the State tonight and tomorrow on a double feature program.

As played by Horton, Dudley is a timid person who thrives on the adulation heaped upon him by the townspeople for his interest in civic affairs. Dudley has a weakness for silver loving cups and banquets. The feeling of importance he gets from his civic enterprise is just what he wants from life. His business suffers and he nearly loses the girl he loves, played by Lois Wilson, so deeply engrossed does he become in his city.

It is when Horton's selfish sister, Marjorie Gateson, begins to annoy him that things begin to happen to Uncle Dudley. Horton tries out his supposed friends and finds they won't even loan him a small sum. From then on Horton is a different man.

The love interest is supplied by two newcomers to the screen, Rosalind Lawrence and John McGuire. After Dinehart and William Benedict are also in the comedy.

The second feature, "I Found Stella Parish," has Ray Francis in the title role. With the star are Paul Lukas, Ian Hunter and Sybil Jason, the six-year-old child star. Miss Francis plays an actress whose life and happiness are shadowed by a scandal in her past. For the sake of her child, played by Sybil Jason, the actress leaves London on the eve of her greatest success.

Her strange and sudden disappearance startles London and leads to a search for her by a young newspaperman, played by Ian Hunter. His discovery of her and the publication by him of her secret of her past life nearly ruins the actress. Then he learns to love the woman and tries to undo the wrong he has done her.

Paul Lukas plays the theatrical producer in love with Miss Francis. CARD OF THANKS

Administration Leaders See Clear Sailing Toward Cash Bonus Payment

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—Clear sailing toward a quick and favorable senate vote on the new coalition bill to pay the soldiers' bonus in cashable "baby bonds" was predicted today by administration leaders.

Chairman Harrison (D. Miss.) of the senate finance committee expressed a belief the bill would receive committee approval today after Secretary Morgenthau had been questioned in executive session as to the soundness of its financing provisions.

Senate Meets Thursday
The eventual cost of the government is estimated at $2,491,000,000 but backers of the bill say the immediate expense would be only $1,000,000,000.

It may come up in the senate Thursday, the next meeting day. Both administration and veterans' leaders predicted the house would concur with the plan in view of that branch's passage last Friday of a bill which is similar except for the method of payment. The house bill had no specific payment provisions.

Observers felt opposition may come from a few senators opposed to spending outside the federal budget and those wanting to pay the bonus with new currency.

"Will Become Law"
But Harrison brushed this aside with this confident expression: "In my opinion this bill will be enacted into law."

Senator Borah (R. Idaho) who favored the inflationary Patman bill last session, also said he had no doubt the Harrison measure "will become law."

Major veterans organizations swung into line behind the bill. The attitude of President Roosevelt was not expressed, but senate leaders, who took part in negotiations that led to agreement on the bill, were known to have been animated by the hope they might win Mr. Roosevelt's approval.

Entitled the "adjusted compensation payment act of 1936," the bill was introduced yesterday by Harrison on behalf of himself and Senator Byrnes (D. S. C.); Steiwer (R. Ore.) and Clark (D. Mo.) the latter three have long been leaders for full cash payment.

Harrison announced that Democratic Leader Robinson of Arkansas favored the bill.

Mosier asserted that the $750,000 that the state did owe has been paid off.

"In 1933 it cost about $125,000,000 to operate schools in Ohio, whereas today those same operations now cost only between $80,000,000 and $90,000,000," the speaker reported. "Back in 1907 weak school districts started obtaining funds from the state in order to function properly. Today those same school districts cost the state about $50-250,000 annually."

Economy Objective
"Economy in state government operations has been the objective of the present administration," the speaker said. "Our budget for two years will run between $85,000,000 and $90,000,000."

"However, it costs between $350,000,000 and $400,000,000 to run city and county sub-divisions in Ohio annually. This should be cut some way," Mosier contended.

The lieutenant governor praised President Roosevelt's plan for strict neutrality and his program of relief aid by a long-time socialization system.

AKRON BOOTLEG CASE IS OPENED

Testimony of Deputy Aids Government in Fight to Convict Potts

CLEVELAND, Jan. 14. — From testimony by John Lavery, former Summit county deputy sheriff, the federal government planned to show today how contributions were collected from Summit county bootleggers in 1933 and 1934.

Government attorneys said Lavery's story was one of the key parts of their fight to convict Ray Potts, former Summit county sheriff, and 15 other persons on charges of conspiracy to violate the internal revenue laws. A jury of three women and nine men is hearing the case.

Seek "Bootleg King"
Ten others have pleaded guilty to the charges, and six, including Leo Isar, known to police as the "Bootleg King" of Akron, are being sought.

A long parade of 40 government witnesses began with Harry Vandervee, former bootlegger, his wife, and Rex Hess, another ex-deputy sheriff.

Hess testified he campaigned for Potts in the fall of 1932 on the promise that he would be made a deputy.

"Potts asked if I knew any of the bootleggers in Summit county," he told the jury. "I told him I knew them all. He asked me to take him out to see Tony Straga (one of the defendants). I took him out. . . Potts asked Straga to contribute to the campaign fund."

"Straga said: 'Well, you know the business I am in.' Potts said he knew. Straga said: 'What can you do for my stills?' Potts said: 'Don't worry, you won't be molested.'"

"Straga counted out $150 and handed it to Potts. Later, he gave him another $150."

Hess asserted "Potts told us deputies not to molest any bootleggers or road houses unless he himself sent us out."

Vandervee, who operated stills in various parts of Summit county from 1926 to 1934, told how he met Potts and Isar in November, 1932, and paid $100.

Raids in Cleveland and Lorain Today Result in Arrest of Five Men, Two Women

CLEVELAND, Jan. 14.—Detectives seized five men and two women in a series of raids in Cleveland and Lorain today which they said, broke up a gang of safe crackers who have taken $25,000 lost recently.

One of the prisoners leaped into an auto and led a police car in a 65-mile-an-hour chase, which ended when his machine was crowded into a crash against a curb. He was the gang's machine gunner, they said.

In his home, one of the hide-outs, $2,400 in cash was found and two bank books with deposits of $4,000 within the past week. He already is under bail in a $5,000 holdup.

Detectives Alfred Jones, Anton Balzar, and Anthony Kocovar led the raids.

The first was made in Lorain, where one man and woman were arrested. Then two men and a woman were taken at a card room here. Two more men were found in a barber shop.

The gang consists of 10 members. The detectives said they expected to capture two explosive experts today.
